Spreading the word

SEPTEMBER 14TH, 2014

DEPTHERAPY is dedicated to helping wounded British Armed Forces servicemen and women through scuba diving.

This amazing charity helps those who have lost limbs or are suffering PTSD or Traumatic Brain Injuries (TBI) to rehabilitation and well being, by being underwater. Depththerapy also teaches dive professionals how to use specially adapted instructional methods.

Richard Cullen of Depththerapy has been in touch: "Another BIG THANK YOU to ATOMIC AQUATICS who have provided us with some single foot fins for the Depththerapy and Depththerapy Education programme.

We have some single leg amputees just about to start the programme and single fins are just what we need. These will be a huge help in getting more of our injured troops and veterans diving and enjoying life to the full. THANK YOU."

Frank Buchanan Scuba Trust

Our program is by no means limited to current and ex-members of the UK Armed Services, but includes their dependents and similar persons from the "blue light" services and their dependents who have life-changing physical and/or mental illnesses or similar.

Our programmes have been proved to be especially beneficial to those suffering proved Post Traumatic Stress Disorder.

The approach is supported by senior doctors and has provided startling results.
